The post-revolutionary Islamic constitution adopted in 1979 provides for the president's duties to be performed by a three-man council for 50 days while a new presidential election is arranged.

The council comprises Premier Mohammed Ali Rajai, Majlis Speaker Rafsanjani and Ayatollah Mohammed Beheshti, who is chief justice of the Supreme Court and general secretary of the Islamic Republican Party.

Mr. Bani-Sadr, 48, a French-trained economist, was the ayatollah's protege in the days when both struggled from abroad against the late shah.

Now he is a fugitive sought by millions of Iranians after an arreston-sight order by the revolutionary prosecutor-general. Mr. Bani-Sadr has not been seen in public since shortly after his dismissal June 19 as commander-in-chief of the sting to forcer. The authorities has lieve he is finding, and there have been reports that he has left iran. Avatollah Khomeini appealed to Mr. Bani-Sadr to return to Iraa as a theoretician. The Associated

"I now advise Mr. Bani-Sadr not to fall into the trap of those groups abroad who are lying in ambush to disgrace what is left of your honor," Aya-tollah Khomeini said. The prosecutor-general, Ali Qoddousi, said Mr. Bani-Sadr faced charges including "provoca-tion of [political] groups to resist legal institutions and the Islamic republic and encouraging prisonrepublic, and encouraging prisoners to go on hunger strike.

Over the weekend, the Majlis debate on the president's political competence, which resulted in 93 percent of the deputies present approving his impeachment, sparked street battles in the capital and other Iranian cities. In Tehran, 25 persons were officially reported to have been killed, most of them by bullets.

The revolutionary authorines swiftly condemned and executed 23 persons whom authorities termed counterrevolutionaries. Among those sent before the firing squads were Sayid Soltanpour, a prominent leftist poet and play-wright who had campaigned against the shah, and Ali-Asghar Amirani, publisher, manager and editor of the biweekly political magazine Khandaniha.

Khandaniha had published articles critical of the revolutionary government after the fall of the shah in January, 1979. and Mr. Anurani had been held in jail since shortly after the revolution. The prosecutor-general said Mr.

the surface. It is rooted in a common revolutionary experience, as well as in the peculiar history of Iran that lent passion to the strug-gle between the liberals surrounding Mr. Bani-Sadr and the mullah-led religious traditionalists of the Islamic Republican Party.

Writing in 1938, the historian Crane Brinton — in a classic work enuitled "The Anatomy of Revolution," which Mr. Bani-Sadr has been recommending to intimates in recent months - posited a series of stages through which he traced the developments of the U.S., French and Russian revolunons as well as Cromwell's rule in Britain.

The thesis -- briefly, of an almost inevitable drive from moderation to extremism --- neatly parallels the progress of Iran's revolution to date.

With the overthrow of the old regime, Mr. Brinton suggests, the moderate revolutionary forces take over what remains of the structure of government. However, they are almost immediately confronted with what be describes as the problem of "dual sovereignty." the existence of other, more revolutionary and hence perhaps more legitimate centers of power.

Government Undercut

This was precisely the dilemma that faced the provisional government of Premier Mehdi Bazargan until it fell because of the seizure of the U.S. Embassy, and that of Mr. Bani-Sadr through most of his period of prominence. The official government was undercut by the secret, clergy-dominated Revolutionary Council, which was the last word, and by such revolutionary organs as the neighborbood komu-tens that meted out vigilante order. "The paradox," Mr. Brinton noted, is that "in the early stages of the revolution, the control of the machinery of government is in it-self a source of weakness for those who bold such control."

This is what happened to the moderates in Iran, particularly af-ter the seizure of the U.S. Embassy, when the efforts of Mr. Bani-Sadr and other liberals to find a way out of the crisis became a convenient weapon with which the Islamic traditionalists oludgeoned them as being pro-American and anti-revolutionary.

Then, Mr. Brinton suggests, the externists take over in a decisive moment, launching what he calls the "reign of terror and virtue." The key to their success, he suggests, is their takeover of the paral-lel institutions of power.

Clerics Built Power

Though Mr. Bani-Sadr was powerless almost from the beginning, this was the situation in Iran. While the moderates held the ostensible office of government, the clerics were building power through the Revolutionary Council, the militant students, the komitehs, the Revolutionary Guards and the loosely organized Islamic Republican Party.

And, when they deemed it nec-essary, they had the street mobs, the hezbollahis, who have been particularly active the past few days 10 battle liberals and leftists with fists, clubs and knives. Hezbollani means "pany of God."

The struggle on one level was between the Westernized exiles who surrounded the revolutionary leader, Ayaiollah Ruhollah Khomeini, near Paris in the last stages of the shah's overthrow --- primarily Mr. Bani-Sadr and former foreign ministers Sadegh Gbotbzadeb and Ibrahim Yazdi — and the local mullahs who led the komitehs and Revolutionary Guards. While many of the liberals were devout Moslems, to the fundamentalists they were tainted with Western ideas and secularism.

The struggle between religious traditionalism and Western modernism has been a pattern running through Iranian nationalism for the last century. Four times,

EEC Approves Passport Cover

The Associated Press LUXEMBOURG — European Economic Community foreign ministers cleared the final technical hurdle Monday to establishment of a uniform EEC passport. Ministers agreed that the name of each passport holder's country would appear above the words "European Community" on the cover of the travel document, which will be phased in beginning in 1985.

The wording was the final tech-nical detail to be ironed out for the passport, which member countries agreed to earlier this year. The pur-pose of the uniform passport is to give citizens of the 10 EEC countries a common travel identity as a symbol of European unity.

Japanese Voters Re-Elect Mayor In Midway's Port

Los Angeles Times Service TOKYO — The conservative mayor of Yokosuka, the home port of the U.S. aircraft carrier Midway, was re-elected to a third term Monday by a large margin in a contest in which the U.S. naval Kazuo Yokoyama, 66, defeated Shichiro Honda, 58, a Socialist, wbo had pledged to work for the removal of the U.S. Navy base in Yokosuka, where the headquarters of the U.S. 7th Fleet is located, The vote total was 115,464 to 47,715.

The resounding victory for Mr. Yokoyama, who was supported by the ruling Liberal Democratic Party and three middle-of-the-road opposition parties, seemed to reaffirm that Yokosuka residents paid little heed to reports that the Mid-way and other U.S. ships that visit the city on Tokyo Bay carry nuclear weapons.

When the Midway returned to Yokosuka on June 5, the Socialist Party and the Sohyo labor federation mustered about 7,000 demonstrators to oppose the introduction of nuclear weapons into the area. Most of the demonstrators apparently came from other locations. Although Mr. Yokoyama had asked that the Midway visit be postponed, he focused his campaign on pledges to improve daily living conditions while accepting the presence of the U.S. naval base. But Mr. Honda, who had Communist backing, tried to make the U.S. presence and the nuclear weapons question central issues.

With Communist ministers in the Cabinet, even in minor posts, Mr. Marchais would undoubtedly argue that the party should devote its efforts to making the first leftist government in 23 years succeed rather than engaging in a divisive internal debate.

Mr. Mitterrand also has some compelling reasons to advocate a Communist role in his government. For a decade, he has argued that the Socialists have little to fear from the Communists and that an alliance between the two parties would either force the politburo to take up more moderate positions or lose ground to the Socialists.

Could Become Magnet

If the Communists are excluded from government, they could become a magnet for workers dissat-isfied at the pace of Mr. Mitterrand's reforms. The Communists continue to control the CGT, the largest labor federation. And as the party leadership unceasingly repeats, Communist voters provided Mr. Mitterrand and his Socialists with their victory margins in the runoff elections for the presidency and the legislature. To fore-close the possibility of Communist participation in government would be a slap against several million voters.

Whatever his decision, Mr. Mitterrand is not likely to be dissuaded from inviting Communists into the Cabinot by arguments being made by France's allies abroad. He does not seem alarmed that he might be setting a precedent for It-aly, where the Communists, far stronger than their French counterparts, have been pressing for a government role for years. Nor is Mr. Mitterrand likely to

Officials Check Files of Iranians in U.S. To See If Papers Were Gotten by Fraud

By Robert Pear

New York Times Service WASHINGTON - U.S. officials are reviewing immigration re-cords for hundreds of Iranian aliens on the suspicion that many received immigration henefits, including status as permanent residents of the United States, through fraud or bribery.

The investigation focuses on the period after the seizure of the U.S. Embassy in Tehran, which led President Jimmy Carter to impose severe restrictions on the issuance of visas and permanent resident alien identification cards, commonly known as green cards, to Iranians

Officials of the Immigration and Naturalization Service and the Federal Bureau of Investigation said last week that federal agents were reviewing the records and interviewing Iranians to determine how hundreds had obtained visas and green cards despite the restriclions

Although the United States and Iran have no formal diplomatic re-lations, Iranians streaming out of the Middle East, through Europe, continue to seek a haven in the United States. They include sup-porters of the late shah, opponents of Ayatollah Rubollah Khomeini and members of many religious and ethnic minority groups.

Focus on Tactics

The officials said that a grand jury, to be convened here this summer, would focus on two tactics tried by many Iranians: the use of counterfeit documents to show a close family relationship to citizens or permanent residents of the United States, and the incorporation of American businesses purporting to be subsidiaries of Iranian companies

Both tactics enabled Iranians to get green cards, which gives foreigners most of the rights of citi-zens. After living in this country for five years, permanent resident aliens are eligible to become naturalized citizens, Federal agents have been scruti-nizing the activities of Shams Javid, a 47-year-old Iranian-American whom they described as a target of the investigation. In a two-hour mterview at a restaurant near his home in Falls Church, Va., Mr. Javid said that federal agents were constantly there at my house" and had interrogated many Iranians whom be had advised on immigration matters.

Mr. Javid is oot a lawyer but said he had belped Iranians fill out immigration forms. When asked how many of his countrymen had entered the United States with his assistance, be smiled and said,

"God knows - thousands." Mr. Javid said that he came to the United States in 1963, became a citizen in 1970 and worked at the Iranian Embassy here, as a purchasing officer, in 1973 and 1974.

In the last year, he said, he ofgate whether Immigration Service employees collaborated with Iranifered his services as an immigration consultant from the Falls Church Office of the Sunshine Co. of America, Inc. The company's articles of incorporation, oo file with the Virginia State Corpora-uon Commissioo, show that it was formed in December, 1979, as a subsidiary of an Iranian company to engage in the export-import busine

It became virtually impossible for such companies to trade with Iran after President Carter, on April 7, 1980, announced a break in diplomatic relations with Tehran and prohibited exports from the United States to Iran.

Several immigratioo lawyers said that their Iranian clients had been interviewed by immigration officers who wanted to know about Mr. Javid and his activities. With the help of a grand jury, federal agents also plan to investi-

Mitterrand Gets the Tools

A few months ago, many French Socialists World countries. How all that will affect were annoyed at Francois Mitterrand, the French productivity, growth, inflation and perennial loser, for not giving way to the younger, more dynamic Michel Rocard as the party's candidate for president. As unemployment rose in France and President Valéry Giscard d'Estaing's popularity declined, not only because of the economic statistics, but because of a taint of scandal and a soupcon or more of arrogance, their annoyance ripened into anger. A lot of them thought that Mr. Rocard could win and that Mr. Mitterrand would lose again. Today Mr. Mitterrand is president of France with an ahsolute majority in the National Assembly. Virtually no one thought that could happen.

Mr. Mitterrand campaigned with great skill, survived a debate much as Ronald Reagan did in the United States, formed a well-balanced government, remained consistent to his principles in the weeks leading up to parliamentary elections and in so doing persuaded enough middle-of-the-road Frenchmen and Frenchwomen that he was sufficiently centrist to warrant the risk of giving him the parliamentary majority he needs to carry out his policies, including nationalizations and increased social spending. Mr. Mitterrand has earned the opportunity he has heen given, and once he was elected, the French people were right to give it to him.

Now it remains to be seen how he will govern. Mr. Mitterrand is taking over an economy in which inflation is near 13 percent and unemployment is about 7.5 percent. He has already raised the minimum wage and favors cutting working hours. He plans to create public service jobs and nationalize major industries and private hanks. At the same time he has declared his intention to maintain France's commitment to Western defense and to increase its support for Third unemployment is unknown, although some of the leading politicians of the right such as Jacques Chriac have already predicted his failure.

For the moment, attention in France and abroad centers on whether Mr. Mitterrand will invite Communists to join his government. He is said to be leaning in that direction, hut others in his party contend that with an absolute majority he need not do so. Those who favor letting Communists take minor posts argue that it will help keep labor peace and pay off the debt resulting from Communist support in the election. Those opposed say it would alarm France's NATO allies and encourage Italian Communists to press to join their government. The Italian Communist Party commands more than twice the vote of the French party and could become a key factor in an Italian coalition. There could also be repercussions in Spain, which has a large Socialist party and a small, but well-led Communist Party.

What may be more important, though, than any offer to admit Communists to the government, are the conditions for membership. If Mr. Mitterrand insists that the Communists adhere to his Atlantist foreign policy, as he has consistently done, and that they accept his more moderate domestic program. then it probably doesn't matter much if one or two Communist ministers are appointed. They will not be in sensitive posts, nor will they be given access to security information. If they agree to the terms of admission, it might not be too high a price to pay for good relations with the unions. If they don't serve a useful purpose, they can be dismissed.

West Germany: A Pacifist Resurgence

MUNICH - It was almost 58 years ago that Gen. Erich Ludendorff, then living here in splendid but ignoble retirement, wrote a scandalously provocative article for U.S. newspapers.

It expressed the virulent anti-Americanism of many in Germany in those days and, oddly, has some bearing on U.S.-West German relations today, albeit in inverse form. For those who may not remember him, Gen. Ludendorff was the architect of imperial Germany's most stunning victories, as well as its most disastrous defeats, during World War I. He was also Adolf Hitler's co-conspirator in the 1923 Munich Beerhall Putsch. In fact, the article, written just a week before that event, was not published until several days later when Gen, Ludendorff was already under house arrest and Hitler in jail. Gen. Ludendorff berated the United States for its "double standard" on pacifism.

No More War

"A few months ago," he wrote, "The American secretary of war made a sharp attack on American pacifists, yet few Germans are so of-ten and so approvingly quoted in the Ameri-can press as the extreme German pacifists....If the pacifists in America are comparable how can the pacifists of German reprehensible, how can the pacifists of Germa-ny be praiseworthy men?" Like many others of similar martial and irredentist persuasion in those days, Gen. Ludendorff blamed the United States for the "no more war" mood then so popular on both sides of the Atlantic.

I came across the article while doing re-search for a book on the 1923 putsch, and it came to mind in the wake of a phenomenon now sweeping West Germany: a pacifist resurgence that is threatening the survival of Chan-cellor Helmut Schmidt's and Foreign Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher's left-liberal coalition government of Social and Free Democrats (SPD and FDP). The scope of that resurgence was never more evident than at last week's Homburg Evangelischer Kirchentog, the bi-annual convocation of West Germany's Lutheran Evangelical Protestants, which drew some 120,000 Christian activists for five days of theological and political discussion.

By John Dornberg

German-U.S. discontent, but with an ironic twist. For today, it is in the United States that pacifists in West Germany see the menace to peace and the source of warlords that their predecessors saw at home six decades ago.

The movement is of relatively recent origin. In fact, it did not really become manifest until after last November's U.S. election, the advent of the Reagan administration with its empha-sis on greater defense spending, and what is seen by the disillusioned here as the final curtain on detente.

And that is the font of the movement's anti-U.S. slant.

The most immediate issue, of course, is the December, 1979. NATO "double resolution" on nuclear modernization and the Schmidt-Genscher government's commitment to that policy, which calls, on one hand, for produc-tion and stationing of Cruise missiles and Pershing-2s in Europe while, on the other, of-fers the Soviet Union arms limitation talks. But the roots of the disenchantment are more universal and reach deeper,

To be sure, it is not the first pacifistic cur-rent in West Germany. Those with long memo-ries may recall the strong opposition to rear-mament and membership in NATO during the early 1950s, the "Easter marchers" of the late 1950s and the anti-atomic-warfare movements of the 1960s.

But there are distinct qualitative and quanti-tative differences, not to mention the speed with which the current mood is sweeping the country.

Earlier campaigns either had their origins largely with the far-left fringe of the political spectrum or were rooted in SPD opposition policies to the then-governing Christian Demo-crats (CDU/CSU). Today's "neo-pacifism" has a much broader political and ideological base, and within the SPD-FDP, is directed in-tranurally at the coalition's leadership and tramurally at the coalition's leadership and policy.

A Coalition

In a sense, the movement is itself a coalition.

Giving Ceremony Its Due

By Herbert L. London NEW YORK - Have you no ticed in recent years that very few people wear formal wea-even when it is requested on a par-ty invitation? Are you aware of the lack of interest in parades? Have you noticed how many people re-gard a stedding ceremony as : lark? If you have, then you musknow that Americans seem to be increasingly suspicious of, and tend to ignore, ceremonics. Ye ceremony plays an important, per-haps indispensable, role in American life.

In "Song of Myself." Walt Whin-man asks: "Why should I venerate and be ceremonious?" When egali-tarians rule the cultural roost, ceremony is to be eliminated along with artificial preservatives and with a mercan process tradition nuclear energy. There is an American tradition going back to the 19th Century Transcendentalists that associates ceremony with deceit, circumlocution and external appearances. A ritual deceremonialization in our history often took the form of opposing authority, institutions and tradition, although it had its posi-live side in the elevation of the common man and a romance with

It is what Huckleberry Finn and Hol-den Caulfield agreed on even though they spoke with different generational voices, and it is the one slim thread tying Hawthorne's fables to Charles Reich's jeans-clad, Consciousness III hippies.

In Jerusalem

To Jerusalem last week came an unusual group of pilgrims for a unique reunion, all survivors of the Holocaust and their families - 4,000 of them from 23 countries joining another 1,000 victims of Nazi concentration camps who now live in Israel. Why now? Some participants said they hoped to bring the "lessons" of the Holocaust to a world that has known its share of more recent genocidal regimes since the destruction of Adolf Hitler's "Thousand-Year Reich." Anti-Semitism still flourishes in a number of countries, they pointed out, and there even exists in France and the United States a bizarre coven of neo-fascist polemicists devoted to spreading the malicious falsehood that the Nazis never murdered 6 million European Jews along with millions of Gypsies, Poles, Russians and others — that the Holocaust, in short, was a myth. For those who survived camps, the fear that Western memory of the "Final Solution" has become gravely weakened provides reason enough to travel to Jerusalem --- bringing their children. Many who came also brought with them documents, written memoirs and tape-recorded "oral histories" of their ordeal in the camps, all designed to bear witness to the numb, dismal suffering of those years, which cannot emerge in the televised attempts to recreate the crime through which the present generation comes to "know" the Holocaust. If their children alone could be made to understand the costs of endurance in the camps and the painful mixture of pride and guilt that often afflicted survivors, that and the memorial moments for those who perished lent the occasion special purpose.

vened in Jerusalem at the very moment that Israel experienced the aftershocks and fallout of its raid on Iraqi nuclear facilities, a coincidence that lent an extra dimension - possibly an uncomfortable one for some survivors to the occasion. They had listened earlier as Prime Minister Menachem Begin defended the raid as a step toward preventing an eventual atomic "Holocaust" directed against Israel. Later, Mr. Begin linked two quite distinct strands in the historical experience of Jews: the prophetic stress upon re-turning one day in triumph to the Holy Land and the emphasis upon survival itself.

Speaking at the Wailing Wall, site of the Roman destruction of the Second Temple in A.D. 70, Mr. Begin put it this way: "Where is the emperor? Where is his might? Where is Rome? Jerusalem lives forever. We are here." He avowed that Israel had proved itself capa-values above all else the moral virtue of personal endurance. As Mr. Begin's audience recognized immediately, the Yiddish version of the phrase "we are here"- Mir zaynen do is the last line of an anguished song made famous during World War II when those walking to their deaths in the concentration camps sang it to affront their captors. The lyric urged Jews not to despair or to say they were leaving for the last time, because in the end they would persist: Mir zaynen do. That sentiment, and not simply Mr. Begin's dismissal of historic enemies, is the telling legacy left to the rest of us in Jerusalem last week hy those who managed the miracle of escap-

U.S. and the Chinese Dragon

Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr.'s visit to China was no douht part of the process of counteracting Soviet global expansionism particularly in Asia.

Both the Democrats and the Republicans have, for a decade, been wooing the Chinese with Ping-Pong diplomacy, full recognition, technology transfer, military and cultural exchanges, and most recently, the sale of offensive arms, a reversal of the declared policy of the previous Carter administration.

ASEAN [the Association of Southeast Asian Nations] is understandably very concerned at the escalation of this romance which explicitly identifies the Soviet Union to be the principal, if not only, superpower ready to gohhle up Southeast Asia as part of its grand design for the whole world.

Regrettably, the Chinese threat has been reduced to being only a bogey. But nothing has happened to alter the fact that both the Russians and the Chinese have had their own designs on the freedom and neutrality of Southeast Asia.

The United States must be reminded that although it is still licking its Vietnam wounds and is content for the time being to only show a presence by intermittent saber-rattling, it should not unwittingly allow its hands to be tied hy the Chinese dragon in its attempts to check the Russian bear. — From New Straits Times (Kuala Lumpur).

An Unattractive Campaign

Within the limits set hy its definition as a Jewish state, Israel is the only democracy for many miles around. Its current election campaign to choose a new Knesset and government on June 30 has not however shown that democracy in its most attractive light.

Thugs, either sponsored or unchecked by Menachem Begin's Herut Party, have broken up Labor Party meetings, smashed offices, and threatened opposition spokesmen with physical violence. Mr. Begin himself has whipped up a national fervor (which needs little stimulation in any case) and his raid on the Iraqi nuclear power plant has been the occasion and probably the cause of his further rapid rise through the opinion polls.

Moreover, Mr. Begin again has offered no guidance about the most important issues of all, which are concerned with Israel's place among nations and especially among Arab nations.

NEW YORK - The New York World Telegram published the following editorial today: "Mr. Hoover's proposal for a one-year postponement of all payments on intergovernmental war debts and reparations is a splendid first step. It will not, of course, reach causes that are forcing Europe toward bankruptcy, revolution and war. Until competitive armaments, territorial maladjustments and prohibitive tariffs are removed, lesser measures can only postpone the explosion. But one year afforded by the moratorium can be used to begin the removal of those causes of revolution and war. Mr. Hoover had the courage to reverse the policy of the last 10 years."

loan guarantees and insurance programs are more than matched by loan repayments, interest on loans, insurance premiums and guarantce fees it receives from its users. This year it will generate income of about $125 million, of which $35 million is budgeted for payment to the Treasury. A Congress dedicat-ed to reducing the deficit should not cut a program that has consistently made money, while supporting private enterprise.

A reduction in Ex-Im financing will lead to a reduced level of export growth. Ex-Im finances sales that almost surely would be lost without its support.

Most goods manufactured for export by U.S. companies are competitive in world markets in terms price and quality. But U.S. technology is no longer unequaled.

Competition

In the intense competition with foreign companies, the factor determining whether purchasers abroad buy U.S. goods or those of other industrial nations is often the terms of export credit financing. Foreign governments grant ex-tremely favorable financing terms for their exports. Without the help ments providing unmatched incentives to foreign buyers for comparable products.

Ex-Im-financed export sales in large part would not have been successfully concluded in the absence of assistance. The secretary of the Treasury reported in 1980 that more than 70 percent of the direct-credit export sales financed by Ex-Im would not have been made without such financing. The comptroller general said that where Ex-Im participates "the assistance it provides may well be crucial in maintaining important export markets."

In most cases, the absence of Ex-Im financing completely excludes U.S. companies from competing with subsidized foreign manufacturers for major sales.

Exports are essential to U.S. economic security, and Ex-Im is essential to many exports. Exports offset the burden of heavy foreign oil bills, help the balance of trade, strengthen the dollar and reduce inflationary pressures. Yet, Ex-Im has been forced to stop taking new business — an economic tragedy. Ex-Im can help the administration create new jobs without rekindling inflation. One in six U.S. workers is involved in the production of goods sold abroad. Every SI billion in exports creates up to 40,000 new jobs.

The cuts in Ex-Im funding now before Congress will mean a reduction in more than $12 billion in export sales and more than 600,000 man-years of U.S. employment in the next five years.

Ceremony may limit our options, it may circumscribe our perception of events, but it also attenuates the life cycle so that the passage of time is within our undertanding. SWAPO Leader Says U.S. Thwarting Namibia Efforts

By Pranay B. Gupte New York Times Service NAIROBI - The president of the South-West Africa People's Organization accused the Reagan administration Monday of under-mining efforts by the United Nations to bring about a settlement in South-West Africa (Namibia). In a harsh criticism of recent U.S. diplomatic efforts, reflecting a rising sentiment among African leaders gathered in Nairobi for a summit meeting of the Organization of African Unity, SWAPO leader Sam Nujoma, said that it appeared to his guerrilla organiza-tion that President Reagan had decided to throw the weight of the United States squarely behind the white minority regime of South Africa.

Namibia is administered by South Africa under a mandate giv-en after World War I by the nowdefunct League of Nations.

"We denounce the recent American diplomatic missions to Namibia because this is tantamount to recognizing the puppet regime cre-ated by South Africa there," Mr. Nujoma said at a news conference. He was referring to a visit to Nam-ibia recently by Deputy Scretary of State William P. Clark, who also traveled to South Africa and Zimbabwe.

Mr. Nujoma urged new, "comprehensive" sanctions by the West against South Africa. "This is the only way — there is no other way out, be said. The Reagan administration is coming under increasing criticism from African leaders at the OAU meeting. The summit session, which formally begins Tuesday, was preceded by a meeting of the OAU Council of Ministers. Foreign ministers from the 50 member states of the OAU have supported the idea of asking the West, especially the United States, to institute new sanctions against Pretoria. Mr. Nujoma said that if the West, in particular the United States, failed to heed this call, his organization would ask the OAU to call for economic sanctions

Soviet Infant Mortality Rate Still High, Official Concedes After 6-Year Silence

By Serge Schmemann New York Times Service

MOSCOW - A Soviet statistician has acknowledged that infant mortality rates, last made public in 1974 and considered one barometer of a society's well-being, have remained high in the Soviet Union since an upward turn 10 years ago. Alexander I. Smitnov, deputy chief of the department dealing with such statistics in the State Planning Commission, said the annual number of Soviet babies dying before the end of their first 1.000 births. year had been about 28 per 1,000 since 1978. The rate reached a low of 22.9 in 1971, then rose quickly to 27.9 in 1974. Thereafter such rates were omitted from Soviet statistical reports. The U.S. rate, by contrast, has been steadily declining, and is now about 13 or 14 deaths per

The executive, who requested anonymity out of fear of possible reprisals against relatives still in Kandahar, said fighting between insurgents and a combined force of Soviet and Afghan troops raged from Friday afternoon through at least early Sunday, when he fled to the Pakistani horder, about 150 kilometers (90 miles) to the east.

He estimated that thousands were injured in Nahiya II, which

The provincial capital, Afghanistan's second most populous city, has been the scene of more than six months of stubborn urban guerrilla war. Insurgents wrested almost complete control of the city away from authorities for a twoweek period in late spring.

The Afghan official, speaking in English, said the saturation bombing was part of a new Soviet strategy of clearing crowded neighbor-hoods, which anti-government guerrillas have used to launch their

He quoted the head of his corporation department, a Marxist, as saying that the Russians planned to leave intact only the city's new section and their base at Kandahar airport.

A Soviet helicopter gunship dropped pamphlets on Nahiya II the day before the bombing, warning residents that something other than tanks would be used against them if firing continued "on any street, from any corner, near any house," he said.

That day, Thursday, two Afghan tanks were attacked and set ablaze by insurgents, he said.

And in another daring daylight incident, the Afghan said he watched guerrillas last Thursday Fire on the city's police commander as he was driven in a Soviet-made Volga sedan through a central Kandahar square.

"I was eating lunch at the Mazar restaurant on the square when the shots were heard and I saw the police commander jump out of the car, then run past me on foot, Then the Mujahaddin [Moslem insurgents] set fire to the Volga."

The police official reportedly escaped.

In apparent response to the at-tacks, the Afghan informant said, four MiG-17 warplanes pounded Nahiya II and nearby villages Friday morning. The four MiGs flew out of the American-built airport, south of the city, now the main Soviet base where the source said he recently counted 42 helicopter gunships and 152 attack aircraft.

Mr. Smirnov said Soviet demographers found no evidence to suggest that the high rate of Soviet in-fant deaths was caused by medical, family or social factors. He attributed it to improved statistical reporting, especially in areas of Cen-tral Asia.

At a news conference, Mr. Smir-nov also touched on Soviet concern over a lagging and geographically varied hirth rate, and outlined a series of new programs designed to inspire larger families. especially in the west and north. The Soviet birthrate stands at 18.3 a year per 1,000 people, compared with 15.7 in the United States.

American Studies

Several of the issues raised by Mr. Smirnov have been the focus of recent American studies, notahly by Murray Feshbach, a demographic analyst with the U.S. Commerce Department's Census Bu-reau. The U.S. reports have noted that Soviet Moslem populations in Central Asia are growing at a far higher rate than that of the Russian and other Slavic peoples. Western analysts have suggested that the resulting change in ethnic patterns could generate problems for the dominant Slavs. Mr. Smirnov acknowledged that many of the incentive programs he outlined are designed primarily for European, Siberian and Pacific re-gions, as opposed to Central Asia. The incentive programs seemed to be aimed at a common reason given by Russians for having one child — lack of living space. Among reasons Mr. Smirnov advanced for the lower birth rates in the north were some that Mr. Feshbach had given for high infant mortality: 93 out of every 100 women working, housing short-ages, abortions, and alcoholism, which Mr. Smirnov described as the Soviet bloc. one of the most serious problems of all our demographic, social, eco-nomic and spiritual policies."

The trend in Sovlet baby deaths was documented in a U.S. Commerce Department study by Chris-topher Davis and Mr. Feshbach, ements. who used Soviet figures through 1974 and then resorted to estimates. By 1976, the study said, 31.1 out of 1,000 Soviet infants were not reaching their first hirthday

Although Mr. Smirnov's figures contradict the U.S. study, the rate he cited substantially exceeds that of most developed countries. For example, France's infant death rate is about 11.4 per 1,000, West Germany's is 15.5, Britain's is 14, Sweden's is 7.7 and Japan's is 8.9

(1977 and 1978 figures). In their study, Mr. Feshbach and Mr. Davis said Soviet explanations that the higher mortality rate reflected better statistical reporting were uncoovincing.

WHEN YOU MAKE THE FOLKS BACK HOME WANT TO BE IN YOUR SHOES, SAVE SOME DUTCH GUILDERS ON THE CALL.

Who wouldn't want to be in your shoes? Especially when those feet will be taking you to the famous cheese markets, flower auctions, gorgeous canals, windmills, and a Van Gogh or two. So share it all with your family and friends back home. But before you make that call, here are some guilder-saving tips.

SAVE ON SURCHARGES

Many hotels outside the U.S. charge exorbitant surcharge fees on international calls. And sometimes the fees are greater than the cost of the call itself. But if your hotel has TELEPLAN, the way to keep hotel surcharges reasonable, go ahead and call. No Teleplan? Read on!

There are other ways to save money. SAVE WITH A SHORTLE

In most countries there's no threeminute minimum on self-dialed calls. So if your hotel offers International Dialing from your room, place a short call home and have them call you back. The surcharge on short calls is low. And you pay for the callback from the States with dollars. not local currency, when you get your next home or office phone bill.

SAVE THESE OTHER WAYS Telephone Company credit card and collect calls may be placed in many countries. And where they are, the hotel surcharges on such calls are usually low. Or, you can avoid surcharges altogether by calling from the post office or from other telephone centers.

SAVE NIGHTS & WEEKENDS Always check to see whether the country you're in has lower rates at night and on weekends. Usually the savings are considerable.

Now that you've learned to walk on wood, you've saved a little shoe leather. And now that you've learned the calling tips, you'll find it easy to foot the phone bill.

GLYNDEBOURNE, England - New productions in the annual opera festival here are not usually introduced on a Sunday, but June 21 is midsummer day, and the temptation to introduce Peter Hall's new production of Benjamin Britten's "A Midsum-mer Night's Dream" on that day was too great to be resisted.

And a good thing that it was not, for the day, or evening, turned out to be one of those — and there have not been many this summer or last — that visitors to Glynde-bourne dream of oo midsummer nights, the gardens in full flower and the spacious lawns offering a verdant welcome to dinner-interval picnickers.

The production suited the occa-sion. Hall's admirable objective, imaginatively and ingeniously seconded by John Bury's designs and lighting, would seem to have been

Design Interiors: A Success Saga For Two in London Firm

ONDON - When Tessa Kennedy and Michael Sumner set up shop as interior designers in 1968 they had no money, no customers and little experience. Today they are among London's most successful de-signers. Kennedy-Summer projects include a 450-foot yacht owned hy the Greek shipowner Stavros Niarchos, the airport in the sheikdom of Qatar and 14 small hospitals for the British United Provident Association.

Sumner, 40, was born in South Africa and came here to study at London University's Bartlett School of Architecture and Planning. In his class was David Mlinaric, now a successful designer, who opened his own studio in 1965 and engaged Sumner. At the time, Dominic Elwes, then Miss Kennedy's husband, was writing a book oo interior design. Etwes offered Miss Kennedy's services as an assistant to Mlinaric. In her teens she had studied at the Ecole des Beaux-Arts in Paris but otherwise had no experience in the design field.

In 1968 Summer and kennedy set up their own business. "I was sepa-rated, with no money and three children to support," Miss Kennedy said. "so it was a necessity to be successful."

First Large Contract

Last year their projects were valued at $5.5 million, and in 1978 they completed their first large contract, the De Beers Consolidated Mines Diamond Trading Center here, a $5-million interior-design job.

In 1974 Summer traveled to the Middle East, looking for work and landed Kennedy-Summer's first large-scale project — the $20-million Equestrian Club in Riyadh, Saudi Arabia. Their jobs have expanded rapidly in the Middle East.

'It took us two weeks to figure out the design of the Equestrian Club," Miss Kennedy said, "because there are no walls parallel to each other and no ceilings for two stories." In the desert she favors cool colors and cotton fabric. "But the Qatar Embassy in Londoo will be like any other London embassy — not Arab," she said firmly.

In the early days, Miss Kennedy and Sumner worked on a house for King Hussein of Jordan, a library for the director Stanley Kubrick and a, a yacht and house for the producer Sam Spiegel. Gradually they shifted from society decorators to lough competitors in contract design. Summer deals with finances and architecture. Miss Kennedy designs interior color schemes and selects fabrics, furniture and accessories.

"In domestic jobs Tessa's social contacts helped a great deal," Sumner said. "But since 1975 we've gradually withdrawn from those jobs. Doing houses is very time-consuming and not stimulating. Now we're doing commercial work, and hanks don't hire you on the basis of your social contacts.

The company has also expanded to designing furniture. "When we did De Beers, we just couldn't find the office furniture we liked," Miss Kennedy said.

Now they are excited about two very different jobs -- designing hospitals and Niarchos' yacbt, the Atlantic. The hospitals are new buildings for which the partners will design everything from bedside tables to visitors' restaurants. They are studying hospital living.

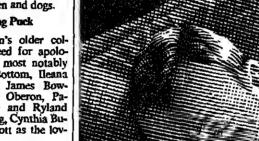

The Niarchos yacht is being decorated as it is being huilt. "Every piece of furniture has to be placed as they're huilding the decks," Miss Kenne-dy said. "And the decks are cambered so the middle is higher than the edges. No legs are the same length." The yacht will be paneled in 18thcentury ofive wood from Spain,

"Niarchos is a very strong personality and he's a man of the sea," Miss Kennedy observed.

Concerns of Serious Market Slide Grow

By Robert Metz New York Times Service NEW YORK - There is concern these days that a moderate stock market setback could lead to mass liquidation and a serious bear market. Near record levels for three key statistics - broker loans, the cost thereof and stock prices themselves - are contributing to this CODCETT Just last Thursday. Chase Manhattan Bank raised its charges on loans to brokers to 21 percent from 20 percent. Brokers usually charge from one-half percent to 3 percent over what they pay for money and Chase Manhattan is an important lender to brokers; thus many investors can expect to pay a higher tariff in financing share purchases. Heavy Speculation

Meanwhile market speculation is rampant as prices remain near record levels. The 30 Dow Jones industrials are hovering near the 1000 level — a little more than 2 percent helow a record high set this month, and the more broadly-based Standard & Poor 500 stock index is about 6 percent below its all-borrowed rose to a high of 660,000, matching the record high set in December, 1980, when the market was at approximately the same level as today.

Last December the market suddenly suffered a wrenching setback. The trigger was a widely-followed market letter urging the sale of all share holdings. The retreat set off margin calls in weak accounts.

In a market slide the most vulnerable customer accounts are those with less than 40 percent equity. Last December such accounts amounted to 13 percent of all margin accounts and made up 14 percent of all margin debt.

The May figures showed that accounts with less than 40 percent equity represent 12 percent of customers buying on margin and 21 percent of the margin debt — a figure substantially higher than in December.

For that much margin debt to be represented by potentially weak bolders at a time when the market is at near record levels is regarded as potentially hazardous.

Sam Skurnick who owns a seat on the New York Stock Exchange and does busi-ness out of Stamford, Conn., usually encourages his customers to buy on margin for added leverage in the stock market. But in a telephoned interview he said that at present almost all of his accounts were fully paid up and that the majority of his accounts had uncommuted cash in them as well.

"Having experienced several bear markets for shares in the past, I would like to be in a position to take advantage of the bargains that a future bear market would present without going into margin heavily."

Merrill Lyneb Pierce Fenner & Smith, Inc., the largest U.S. brokerage firm, is predicting that a great bull market for bonds is about to begin.

Squeeze Play

Mr. Skurnick said that he believes investors should be aware that a political crisis could trigger a market retreat of sufficient dimension to touch off margin calls and cause for even beavier losses.

On an individual basis, here is what can happen:

Suppose a customer has a margin account that has a 40 percent equity balance. Most brokerage firms would call for more margin if the account dropped to 35 or 30 percent equity levels. Thus there is little margin for safety.

Suppose that customer originally borrowed on 50 percent margin in buying sbares worth $10,000. If portfolio value dropped to $7,500 his debt would remain at $5,000 but his equity would be only $2,500 or a third of the market price. This would trigger a mar-gin call at many U.S. brokerage furms.

The price offer represents draoil price, at $41 a barrel OPEC's highest, because Britain, which produces a similar grade of crude, cut its price to $35 a barrel last matic evidence of the weakening of oil prices on the spot market, observers said.

It was the first time in more than three years that Arab light was offered on the spot market below the official price.

That the prospective buyer did not accept the oil even at the low price shows how weak the spot market has become. Despite criticism from its fellow members of OPEC, Saudi Arabia has held the price of its Arab light at $32 a barrel and its production level at 10.3 million barrels a day. Most other OPEC producers have been charging between $36 and $41 a barrel for their crude.

In Monday in Mexico City, unthe sponsorship of Mexico's sident Jose Lopez Portillo, Mr.

Bernasconi was to launch an even-tual $1-billion program for bring-ing informatics — data processing other without any specific court and computers - to underdeveloped countries. In 1983, Cuba's Fidel Castro will preside over a 100-nation conference of strategics and policies for informatics in Havana to kick off a five-year program for a new "world informatics order." And as a runup to the Havana conference, anything. there will be 16 preparatory meetings and five special advisory groups created to line up pledges. The prodigious development of data processing, computers and microchips in the past decade has created many international problems that governments and indi-viduals had never faced before: ity and health data in hospitals.

· Some poorer countries in Sonth America, for example, pro-cess information over leased lines to the United States and other industrialized countries using the "down time" at night when private companies are not using their computers. Many IB1 members complain this "transborder dataflow"

CHAIRMAN'S LETTER

Amsterdam

To our Shareholders,

In 1979, management concentrated on consolidating the rapid growth of the bank and prepared for continued geographic expansion and diversification of its activities in 1980. This program of expansion was indeed achieved this year

1. The balance-sheet increased by 60% from F.F. 2,305 million to F.F. 3,685 million.

2. The structure of the balance-sheet improved proportionally:

- Stockholders equity increased from F.F. 136 million in 1979 to F.F. 173 million in 1980, i.e. 27%. The paidup capital reached F.F. 150 million as the second tronche of F.F. 25 million was paid by the shareholders on December 1, 1980. The third quarter will be paid in June, 1980, and the last one by the end of 1981, thus making the paid-up capital F.F. 200 million.
- --- Total deposit increased during the year by 61%. Client deposits increased by 100% while deposits from Arab Central Banks increased by 63%.
- As a consequence of the improved funding position, we expanded the loan portfolio by increasing the letters of credit octivity with financing relating to oil imports by major companies in Europe and the Far East as well as being more aggressive in leading large syndicated loans for prime barrowers. Thus, we realized an impartant improvement in the profit accounts through fees and commissions resulting from these activities.

3. Gross profit, after depreciation, an ounted to F.F. 30.1 million against F.F. 16.3 million the previous year—an increase of 85%. After transferring F.F. 9.8 million to the provisions, the profit before tax was F.F. 20.3 million compared to F.F. 10.6 million the previous year. After tax, the net profit reached F.F. 11.7 million against F.F. 6.1 million in 1979—an increase of 92%, while balance-sheet growth was 60%.

American Airlines President Smiling High Court Despite Cloudy Skies for U.S. Industry Lets Stand

By Eric Pace New York Times Service

NEW YORK - About six nonths ago, the boyish face of Robert L. Crandall, president of American Airlines, was lined with atigue. He had been getting to work at corporate headquarters in Jrand Prairie, Tex., before sunup ome mornings, and he said ruefuly that if his days did not start ven earlier it was "because I don't hink I can make them any longer and survive

But Mr. Crandall's Rhode Isand Iwang was enthusiastic and irm when he discussed what all he hard work was about - trying o get his sluggish airline to imnove its performance.

In the months since then, Amercan has soared compared with its ompetitors. Its operating margin, key measure of performance, put t in fifth place among the 12 ma-or airlines for this year's first uparter --- up from minth place for I of 1980. The airline showed a 3.9 million profit in the first quarer, compared with a $41.9 million oss for the same period in 1980. All this has not escaped Wall treet's attention. American Airines stock has increased almost hreefold - to 1812, from 634 - in he past 12 months. And there is ome speculation that American night be in line for a takeover at-

"We'll be profitable for the secnd quarter, too," Mr. Crandall aid, speaking on the assumption hat the threatened strike of air affic controllers would not occur. Mr. Crandall dismisses takeover ilk. "We have no indication that nything like that is in the cards," said. Airline analysts said a ikeover attempt was unlikely be-use large airlines' return on juity has historically been relavely low and because they will zed fat chunks of capital in the vars to come.

For the analysts, American's imroved performance under Mr. randall is not exactly a bolt ont the blue. When Mr. Crandall as named president and chief opanng officer last July, at the age 44, Alfred H. Norling, airline pert at Kidder, Peabody, said, the fact that he is a pretty aggres-ve guy just fits with the condions that prevail" now in the in-

By that time, Mr. Crandall had ready made a name for himself the father of discount air lares. · ter joining American as a finanil vice president in 1973, he itched to marketing and attractadmirers and imitators by tking out the popular "super er" fares, 35 to 45 percent less in standard fares, that American roduced in 1977.

As president, working under American's chairman, Albert V. Casey, Mr. Crandall has increased say, through a skillful combination of measures, including enlarging the role of central, or hub, airports in its route system.

Julius Maldutis, a vice president at Salomon Brothers, said the reasons for American's "embarking on a significant recovery from its former sluggishness" include "the reduction in its Boeing 707 fleet, which is economically obsolete; the success of its entry into the Honolulu market on Dec. 27; the development of the Dallas-Fort Worth hub; management's determination to cut expenses as reflected in cuts of approximately 5.000 employees m the 12 months preceeding March, 1981: and its etermination not 10 engage in costly competitive wars against some of the new, upstart airlines."

Polish Bank Makes

Note Issue Payment

PARIS - Poland's Sank Handlowy has repaid the principal on a $30 million floating-rate note issue of 1976-81 through Banque Nationale de Paris, banking sources said Monday.

The repayment ended fears mong Western hanks that note holders could have claimed for default from Monday if not reim-bursed, they said. The deal, the only one of three Bank Handlowy floating-rate notes to attract significant public investment, carried a cross default clause and could have placed other Polish debts in difficultyif not honored, they said.

lion of that for increased U.S. oil exploration and production and $11 billion on buying other com-panies and non-petroleum invest-ments, the group said.

In addition, American has added seating capacity to jetliners by installing space-saving seats, has the airline's showing, the analysts cut back its passenger capacity on routes where demand has been weak and reduced its fuel consumption as well as its payroll,

It has also benefited from a leveling-off in fuel prices and from an increase in its passenger traffic, which was 4 percent higher in May than in May, 1980, the first such year-to-year increase in a year and half. This improvement, its executives said, is thanks largely to good husiness on its Hawau route and to favorable response to its promotional discount fares.

But as Mr. Crandall noted. American, along with other major airlines, still faces major problems, notably, in his words, that "the demand for our product at adequate prices is less than it needs to be to get the industry to the level of pro-fitability needed to huy new, fuelefficient airplanes."

That level, Mr. Crandall and executives of other airlines have been saying lately, is a 5 percent opera-ting margin. Operating margin is an airline's operating profit divided by its operating revenue.

Aut in this year's first quarter, American's operating margin, though greatly improved, was only two-tenths of 1 percent: The company had operating revenue, on its airline operations, of $914.315,000 and operating expenses, on its airline operations, of $912,457,000. Yet Mr. Crandall said that he "hopes and expects" to achieve the 5 percent margin for all of 1982. And be says that just as firmly as he predicted, in November, that American's standing would im-

IBM Ruling

From Agency Dispatche

WASHINGTON - The Su-preme Court refused Monday to step into a major antitrust controversy focusing on allegations that IBM Corp. eliminated its competition in the computer accessory field by illegal monopoly practices.

The court left intact rulings by lower courts dismissing charges by Memorex in a 1973 lawsuit that IBM's tactics cost Memorex $333.3 million in damages. Had Memorex won, a triple-damages award would have cost IBM $1 hillion. Also participating in the suit was Transamerica Corp.'s Transamerica Computing Co. Memorex alleged that IBM, through its policies and prices, tried to force out of the market plug-compatible, manufacturers." Those smaller companies, such as Memorex, were involved in the 1960s and 1970s in the marketing of peripheral products could be at-tached to IBM systems without significant adjustment. IBM said it "offered its consumers lower but profitable prices in response to competition from Memorex and others.

the midst of the Great Depression - 45 years ago to be exact - had United Technologies issued common stock. To be sure, the number of its common shares has increased over the years due to stock splits and deht conversions

But on March 4 in one of the largest industrial public offerings, the company brought five million new shares to the market and raised $268 million. United Technologies is not alone in this type of action. Companies that have not issued stock vears - from Pillsbury to American Telephone & Telegraph, from John Deere to Monsanto are rushing to the public with new shares for sale.

What we have seen is only the tip of the iceberg," said James L. Freeman, director of equity research at First Boston Corp. -If the stock market moves up significantly, we will see a very large issuance of equities," he added. "At some point, companies are going to have to fund out the massive amount of short-term debt they've acquired through the years."

Funds Trap

After decades in the doldrums, the common stocks of some companies are soaring. These are good days on the U.S. stock exchanges with the Dow Jones industrial-average bovering around the fabled 1,000-point barrier. This robust behavior has attracted the attention of corporations trapped between the need for monand the high cost of borrowing, cy and the selling new common shares has become an increasingly common way for corporations to raise money. So far this year, $8.5 billion of new common shares bave been sold, according to statistics com-piled by Merrill Lynch, and some analysts predict that 1981 could set records. The number of stock offerings increased by 121 percent in the first four months of 1981 the same period in 1980.

Part of the attractiveness of stocks is explained by the dismal state of the deht market, the main alternative source of corporate money raising. Interest rates remain near historical highs, and institutional investors, the main purchasers of debt, are stoering clear of long-term fixed-rate bonds. "The stock market is at the upper end of trading over the last five vears." said Fred H. Joseph, senior executive vice president at Drexel Burnham Lambert Inc. "The prime rate is still around 20 [percent] and long-term rates are within striking distance of the worst they've ever been. We're seeing avery broad selection of stock offerings. There's a significant pent-up demand for long-term capital." It has not always been this way. During the last decade, corpora-tions preferred to borrow - from banks, or by issuing bonds or commercial paper - than to create new stock. Until recently, the cost of borrowing was altractive, while the prices of shares were generally so depressed that most companie would not have received much for their efforts if they had sold stock. And the creation of new shares would cause dilution. By increasing the pool of outstanding shares the earnings per share and the price of the stock could drop.

As a result, many companies continally returned to the debt markets, piling on layers of bor-rowings. Between 1975 and 1980, the amount of outstanding corporate bonds showed a net increase of $192.1 hillion, compared with a stock net increase of $27.7 hillion. according to Salomon Brothers statistics. This debt burden has become so great that many analysts feel U.S. companies are over-leveraged, or perilously mired in debt.

'Over-Leveraged'

Many businesses are so debt-rid-den that they would consider issuing common stock if the price of their stock went up. Companies with large amounts of debt risk a downgrading of their rating from a bond agency, which could increase their interest costs even more.

"American industry in general is probably over-leveraged." said Thomas Saunders 3d, bead of Capital Market Services at Morgan Stanley & Company. "It was de-pendent on the issuance of debt when they felt their equity was uo-dervalued," be said, "This has left many companies leveraged beyond where they want to be, Companies realize this and will issue equity when they are afforded the opport tunity to do so."

That opportunity does not come to all companies, Mr. Saunders noted. Unlike the bond market, where falling interest rates reduce borrowing costs for all companies and rising interest rates increase costs for everyone, not all stocks have moved up as the stock market has risen.

Firms Turn to Stock Issues to Raise Cash

And, because of the dilution efsented 33 percent of the total capitalization of its food processing fect, equity is often the funding segment, or "the upper range of what we would like," Mr. Smith choice of last resort, turned to only when a company does not have said. The equity issue - 1.5 milenough internal carnings or has an uncomfortably high level of deht. lion shares that netted $60.5 mil-The U.S. tax system favors deht filion - reduced this to about 25 nancing hy allowing the deduction percent of interest payments from corporate taxes, hut not allowing deduc-tions for dividends paid to comrations fuel the supply side for stock, the demand side is propelled mon shareholders.

"You have to be careful in drawing the conclusion that across the board, we're off to the races with equity," said Mr. Saunders. "Because two or three companies are doing it, doesn't mean that we'll see nothing hut couity."

POWER AND CULTURE The Japanese-American War, 1941-1945 By Akira Irive 304 pp. $22. Harvard University Press, Cambridge, Mass. 02138: Reviewed by John Toland

PERHAPS the greatest irony of World War II is that the enemy the United States most detested, Japan, has become not only its ally but its closest friend in the Orient. The same Americans who still find it distasteful to visit Germany usually find themselves at case in Japan. Even be-fore the attack on Pearl Harbor most Americans regarded the Japanese as subhuman. Japan was the Yellow Peril rather than China, and equally as evil as Nazi Germany. Moreover, the Japanese seemed like creatures from another world, altogether an incom-prehensible contradiction: polite and barbarous, honest and treacherous, brave and cowardly, industrious and lazy — all at the same time. To the Japanese these were not anomalies at all but one united whole, and they couldn't understand why Westerners didn't comprehend this. To the Japanese the more numerous the contradictions in a man, the deeper he was. Even informed Americans under stood little or nothing of this Buddhist concept or the power wielded by dedi-cated young radicals who helped plunge Japan into adventures in Man-churia and China. They assumed that these aggressions were merely steps plotted by the Japanese military steps ers who, like Hitler, sought to seize the world themselves. What Western-ers failed to realize was that underneath the vencer of modernity and Westernization, Japan was still Oriental and that its emergence from feu-dalism to imperialism had come so precipitously that its leaders, who were interested solely in Western methods rather than Western values, had neither the time nor the inclina-tion to develop liberalism and humanitarianism

Independent Reassessment

The Japanese shared many similarities with Americans, striking parallels which have been relatively unexplored in postwar studies. It is fortunate that Akira Iriye has finally brought for-ward a thoughtful and independent reassessment of the Japanese-Ameri-can war from the perspectives of both combarants. He has viewed them as powers and cultures, concluding that international relations are interpower and intercultural relations." He elaborates this concept by examining the meanings the two adversaries gave to the war. Both fought fiercely to survive, yet both "were concerned with when the physical survival and were keenly interested in defining what they were struggling to preserve." Iri-ye's conclusion is that the war aims and peace objectives of both nations and peace objectives of both nations were not at all disparate. Iriye is well qualified on two counts: He lived in Japan during the conflict, and he is now professor of American history at the University of Chicago. He asserts that the war for both nations was a search for international stability, not a struggle for pow-er; and that throughout the hostilities influential Japanese such as Marquis Kido (lord keeper of the privy seal and the emperor's closest adviser), former prime minister Konoye, and Hirohito himself shared with the Roosevelt administration a Wilsonian dream of international cooperation; and that in the latter stage of the war, Japanese leaders, including Tojo, were actively planning a cooperative world structure very much like that being considered in Washington. To an extent the very act of fighting was obliterating differences, between the two nations, and by the end of 1943 there was a marked similinude between the postwar aims of Japan and the United States. That November Japan had convened the Greater East Asia Conference, a meeting of their friends and allies to plan the fu ture Asia. Under the chairmanship of ture Asia. Under the charmansup of Tojo, a declaration was adopted call-ing not only for autonomy and inde-pendence throughout Asia but for worldwide abolishment of racial dis crimination and maintenance of friendly relations with all nations, i cluding economic cooperation at cultural exchanges. The resemblan to the Atlantic Charter (which, by th way, had never survived the ari through the Suez Canal) was no acc dent, and it had been promulgated a much for domestic as for foreign us so as to give the Japanese people. dearer conception of their govern ment's war aims. The leaders, state Iriye, "were preparing themselves and the nation for accepting defeat b calling it a victory for certain univer-salistic principles." How Japanese thi was. For to them "to win is to lose and "to lose is to win."

Although the Greater East Asi Conference declaration seemed t Vesterners to enunciate merely par Asianism, its visions of common eco nomic development, cultural es change and racial equality were at necessarily anti-Western. MOST experts would no doubt solve the problem presented by the diagramed deal. Perhaps one should say all the experts, for a declarer who could not solve the clear-cut playing problem involved would deserve demotion to intermediate sta-

North knew that his kings might be badly placed, but had confidence, justified as it turned out, in his partner's skill. The knowl-edge that one defender has virtually all the missing high-card strength is usually an advantage to the declarer.

Ivan Lendl, the No. 4 seed, how-ever, was upset in the first round by Charles Fancutt of Australia, 4-6-3, 6-4, 1-6, 6-3. "Lendl is a good player, hut grass is a great equalizer," was Fancuit's modest summary after the biggest victory of his life. Century-Old Mark

It was not a vintage perform-ance hy Borg, who look an hour and 35 minutes to finish the first round in his quest to equal Willie Renshaw's mark of six consecutive Wimbledon titles, set nearly 100 vears ago.

Rennert, a 22-year-old bearded American left-hander, produced some superb touch-volleys on his backhand. He unsettled Borg at first, but there was little more to rouse the 14,000 spectators basking in the sunshine in center court. Borg's game was riddled with errors in the 47-minute opening set, in which be looked more like a nervous underdog than a champion. Rennert, beaten in the first round in the quiet backwoods of Court 13 in his Wimbledon dehnt last year, served consistently well, conceding only five points in his six service games until the tiehreaker.

Borg, in contrast, struggled to hold his service. He double-faulted five times, three of them in the fourth game when he saved three break points. But be started to pull his game together in the tiebreak-ing 13th game, which he took com-fortably by seven points to two.

"I didn't feel right," the 22-year-old left-hander said. "I was not myself. I knew it could be a potentially serious match and I was hav-ing trouble with my game. "I realize I was only burting fett, the federal mediator in the baseball strike, has called repre-sentatives of major league players and club owners to resume bargaining on Tuesday. There have been no negotiating sessions since last Friday. The strike, which entered its 11th day on Monday, could last much longer because owners are scheduled to begin collecting on their $50 million strike insurance Wednesday. Under terms of the insurance plan, after 153 games have been canceled by the strike, each owner can begin receiving $100,000 for each additional canceled game. The owners would not exhaust their insurance until Aug. 4. Through Sunday, 127 games had been wiped out by the strike. Moffett had said last week th be would not ask for a resumption in talks until he bad some indication of movement from either side. He called the negotiations up to this point a "charade." The strike began June 12 when negotiators failed to reach an accord on compensation for free agents. Owners want a team losing free agent to receive a majorleague player from the signing team's roster as compensation, but the players say that would inhibit the movement of players and eventually reduce salaries.

By William N. Wallace New York Times Service NEW YORK - Two sons of fa-

the training camps open. David Shula, son of the Miami Dolphins' coach, Don Shula, will try out with the Baltimore Colts. And David's Dartmouth teammate, Jeff Kemp, will report to the Los Angeles Rams, Kemp's father, Jack, now a Republican Congress man from upstate New York, played from 1960 to 1969 with the Chargers and Bills in the American Football League. Jeff, like his father, is a quarterback. Shula, twice an all-Ivy selection

Debra Hill: Horror Pays Off

By Michael Zwerin International Herald Tribune

PARIS - Debra Hill has learned to tell the difference hetween hackfires and gunshots. She lives in a "fish tank" in the Hollywood Hills from which she can see the police helicopters taking off: "I'm the fish. My biggest fear is that when the police helicopter is out there looking for somebody, that person, like in 'Rear Window,' looks up and sees me in my window seeing them commit the crime."

Debra Hill is currently suffering from nightmares. She also produces horror movies, although she admits no causal relationship. She says her production "Escape From New about the total deterioration of U.S. York," society leading to the end of the world, which has its world premiere in Paris on Wednes-day under the title of "New York 1997," should not be taken too seriously."

Because the crime rate has risen 400 percent in the late '80s, in the film Manhattan has been converted into one big prison. Walls are built along the rivers and Liberty Island has been turned into a police bunker. There are no guards inside Manhattan, the prisoners run the prison. Food is dropped in from time to time, but otherwise the prison-ers fend for themselves. The "crazies" climb out from their lairs beneath the streets at night, and Broadway is to be avoided like Liberty City, Miami, during a summer riot. The hlack Duke of New York (Isaac Hayes) rides in the ultimate pimp limo, with crystal chandeliers on the fenders. "When the film was screened for New York critics," Hill said, "they laughed because they thought it resembled present-day Manhattan." (It will open in New York next month.)

Flying to a meeting carrying a mysterious tape that will presumably end World War III, the president of the United States (Donald Pleasence) fall into the hands of the prisoners after his plane is hijacked and crashes at the Battery. The prisoners bold him for ransom - their freedom. Snake Plissken (Kurt Russell), a condemned man about to go into Manhattan prison, is offered a par-don if he rescues the president and his tape. He encounters perfidy, violence, rats, dis-ease, cowardice and sadism. "Call me Snake," he keeps insisting. Russell has acted in "The Computer Wore Tennis Shoes" and lots of other Walt Disney films.

"Walt Disney said, 'Anything that can be imagined can be realized,'" Hill recalled. "'Escape From New York' is an imaginary situation with imaginary characters, but if people come away saying 'My God, it's so real,' then maybe we've created our own real world, and that is a filmmaker's dream."

Or nightmare. A 31-year-old blonde with an easy laugh and a loose style that radiates Hollywood, Hill grew up with movies. Her father, Frank, was artistic director on many '40s Hollywood pictures. As a child she used to love movies with bodies rising out of coffins at midnight. She takes movies as some thing that "reflect rather than predict what is going to happen in society. The guy who shot

Reagan would probably have shot him anyway, with or without Taxi Driver." She and John Carpenter, who directed "Escape From New York," began working together on "Halloween," which cost $300,000 to shoot and made millions. It was about vulnerable girls getting killed by homi-cidal maniacs. "There have been many car-bon copies of it," she said, and langhed. "It's a homage to my childhood."

Hill and Carpenter worked together on "Assault on Precinct 13" and "The Fog." low-hudget horror films which also made money;"Escape From New York," their first union film, cost S7 million. Financing was no problem: "John and I have a track record. We can do any film we want. Grosses talk."

Pre-production meetings were about look rather than content: "We tried to figure out what people would wear 16 years from now, how helicopters would look, what the tech-nology would be. I fought for prisoners' rights. They are issued jeans and navy blue shirts. John didn't want to give them any clothes at all. I'm more liberal than John."

She ordered her third Coca-Cola for breakfast, and continued. "We figured a certain originality would take form. People would make shields out of STOP signs, put bottle caps on their pants, make vests out of hammered beer cans; they would ravage old storerooms and make dresses out of school-room curtains. Pre-production was a real thought process. What does the world of 1997 look like? Only the strongest and the canest would survive."

Matter of Survival

What about the wisest? "Unfortunately it's just a matter of surviv-al in the basic physical sense. The wisest would probably go off and spend time by themselves. For example Brain [Harry Dean Stanton] builds himself a formess in the 42d Street library. It's a matter of supply and demand. Brain taps this underground gas line in the library and the Duke needs him, so his way of dealing with the situation is to survive on his wits. We had lots and lots of meetings about sociology.

"We said, "Who should we get for the Duke? How about Isaac Hayes? Hey, that's a great idea.' We needed a cabhie; we said, 'Ernest Borgnine. Now there's a cabbie.' We shot this film in 56 days last summer, mostly in a ravaged area of St. Louis. It was perfect for the look we wanted for the New York of the future. It was so hot, we consumed $4,000 worth of Coca-Cola.

"Unfortunately I think our film really rep resents where society is at now. If yon've seen Fort Apache, The Branz,' which is about the present, it doesn't look all that dif-ferent. But our film is tun and full of suspense. I think people should just enjoy themselves.

A young Syracuse, N.Y., liquor-store owner paid the highest price ing tasted it.
